

Person vs. Nature

"I scream again as the bear rises onto its hind legs. It towers over me and Moose, and for a second I think we are both goners." (pg. 76)

Person vs. Nature

"I slap my skin, when I take my hand away there is a squashed mosquito on my palm, as well as a smear of blood" (pg. 69)

Person vs. Nature

"A mile later the rain begins. We pause for a moment to shrug into our raincoats," (pg. 128)

Person vs. Self

"It should have been you instead of Lucas, last summer. The awful voice of doubt is relentless. He was the stronger one. The better one." (pg. 133)

The Trail by Meika Hashimoto

Person vs. Self

"I wish it would have been me who died. It should have been me but I'm still here." (pg. 139)

Person vs. Self

"I don't know what to do. I sink to my knees and close my eyes. I totally jinxed myself. It was foolish of me to believe that bad luck wouldn't follow me wherever I went." (pg. 174)
